

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

January 12, 2012

Sundays are now Salty at the Maritime Museum!!

In an effort to be more accessible to more people, the Maritime Museum of BC has implemented a new admission change. Children 12 and under are now free. What better time to take advantage of this new change than to bring your little scallywags to Salty Sundays!

Beginning at 1:00pm every second Sunday at the Museum, enjoy crafts, activities, programming, and tours. Discover something new every month! Drop-ins are welcome. Salty Sundays are free with admission.

January

12th– 1:00pm Salty Sunday – What do I Need to Live in the Deep? Partake in this educational program and learn what is needed to survive in the extreme environment of the deep ocean. For this Sunday only, come visit actual sea creatures in our awesome touch-tank, Seaquaria, provided by World Fisheries Trust and join Let's Talk Science to uncover the science within the ocean.

February

12th – 1:00pm Salty Sunday – Sailor's Valentines – Sailors often leave loves ashore. Hear some tales of lost loves and make an old-fashioned sailor's valentine to give to your true love.

March

11th – 1:00pm Salty Sunday – Navigation – The gray whales are migrating at this time of year. We'll look at how people and animals find their way at sea. Make your own compass and go on a treasure hunt through the museum.

12th-25th – Adventures at Sea Spring Break Activities – Every day throughout Spring Break we've got something happening! Guided tours, pirate school, and behind the scenes.

Also don't forget to visit our amazing new exhibit, What Lies Beneath! Go to mmbc.bc.ca for more information on all our Programs, Exhibits and Special Events!
